

Noisea is an electro/trip-hop band based in Athens, Greece since 2006.

Originally formed by Thanos Liberopoulos (Switters) production – keyboards - synths - programming-samples, George Grammozis, All kind of vocals and guitars and later joined by Thanos Evaggelou (T.D. Lemmon) on bass Noisea blend erratic influences, with electro esthetic and a rock attitude in a unique way that smells like the subway, and feels like a midnight walk on the urban sanctuary.

Stories for people that move on the tail of the eye, horns, drunks, homeless, sic, war-veterans, thieves, lonely old-men, cyber-freaks, for a world that exists under the nose of the well-respected society with the neckties.

Based on a rhythmic section made of cut-breath kicks and snares and a solid but love to swing bass, the rest are a seminar on contradiction.

Vocals that's cream and then whisper, recorded out of old radios and tube amplifiers, heavily distorted fuzz guitar riffs and mellow chords, nostalgic mellotrons, hammonds and raging Moogs, classic pianos and old bar EP's, trumpets, violins, saxophones, choirs and on the top cutting edge synths and samples from what-ever the mind can think and the ear can hear, compile an extremely interesting and full, canvas of emotions and sounds.

As a live act Noisea become a 6 piece band with Kostas Beveratos (drums), Sissy Vlahogianni (keyboards), and Giannis Tavlas (guitars) joining and grooving the stage.

The band gives a show full of passion, a live concert, with a theatrical essence and a video art experience that reveals (or confuses) the magic of the songs.Noisea as a 3 piece act made several lives during 2009 with peak a great performance at Kinky before, lock the doors of the studio and throw the key outside.

Currently the band is rehearsing with their new line-up, the album is in the mixing stage at Cave studios, Lyon, France and they're counting backwards till they come back on stage, with a new show and a record in the luggage.
